

Helping Parents and Schools
Build Collaborative Partnerships

Recognizing the strong link between meaningful family involvement and children's success in school and in life, ParentInvolvementMatters.Org links educators, parent leaders and trainers to useful resources and information.

ParentInvolvementMatters.Org Provides

- Information about parental involvement, why it matters, and links to organizations, programs and publications that provide help and guidance.
- Professional articles and research written by advocates for family involvement in education.
- Success stories submitted by parents and schools that are making positive progress toward building collaborative parent-school communities.
- A bookstore devoted specifically to publications on parent involvement, building parent-school partnerships, and leading positive change in school culture through family engagement.
- A growing consultant directory of professional advocates nationwide who provide services to schools and/or parents to help develop the type of involvement that translates into student social, emotional, physical and academic success.
- Materials to implement or adapt ParentNet® -- a proven process developed by more than thirty schools that facilitates discussion of everyday parenting topics, encourages parent networking and mutual support, and enhances communication between parents, students and schools.

Children Have the POTENTIAL to Achieve their Dreams.

We Have the POWER to Help Them Succeed.
